A PRIMROSE SCHOOLS EDITION

Editors' speak

Greeting to the readers!

The month of September flew past before we could blink our eyes.

First and foremost, the teacher's day celebrations blew our breaths. Senior students were seen trying to act teacher-like by taking control over the entire agenda of the celebration and managing the younger kids. What a sigh of relief we felt on seeing the smile on teacher's face after our performances! Honestly every senior would've realised the challenges and commitments that every teacher faces each day into their work in moulding kids.

We celebrated the festival of Onam amidst celebrated fanfare and unlimited gala. The flowers were arranged and patterned to look like a Kathakali dancer and what a stunning feast to the eyes it was!

Even before the after taste of Onam could linger behind, we were looking at the "Bomma Golu"-the festive display of dolls ranging from the gods to laymen, from parks to animals. The assembly program during Navaratri, shed light on the various customs and traditions followed on a course of nine days in North and South India alike.

This edition of our newsletter is tailored to emphasis on importance of art in our lives and in every school's curriculum.

Well waiting for what October has in store for all of us!

Cheers!

Letter from Principal's desk

Greetings!

Happy Teachers' Day!

As I was preparing for my classes, my heart was pondering on amount of effort invested by my teachers in planning and executing their plan in the classrooms. Teaching is not restricted with transfer of knowledge. I earnestly felt the need to credit our teachers who ignite the fire of learning in the mind that is yearning for knowledge. As said by someone "Teachers don't create an impact for a year, but for a lifetime." A teacher can make a lasting impression on your mind. This influence persists beyond school, college and university, and becomes the beacon of light, guiding us through the journey of life.

When I think of the term 'Teacher', I remember my teachers who toiled so hard to mould me, stood by me in tough times. Their smiles served as a light of my never ending struggles, their words as pillars of motivation. Today I feel happy that time has blessed me with an opportunity of pursuing my passion. I feel teaching is not a course that is restricted to the certificates and any official document that proclaims the eligibility.

Teaching is just the passion which enables one to fish out the hidden identity of every individual, extract the nectar of goodness from young minds. The best gift a teacher can ever receive is to see their student flourish. As the quote goes

“In our classroom....

We are kind...

We are honest.

We give compliments,

We laugh a lot,

We make mistakes,

We have big dreams,

We are peaceful,

We work hard,

we are a family”.

Finally, the big day was celebrated in our campus with the acknowledgment from the students. Students of Primrose were excited to bring out to light their love and gratitude for their teachers through various mode of entertainment. I respect the love, affection and gratitude shown by kids towards the teachers. As a teacher I gain more strength, energy and motivation when I meet my children every day. I wish all my teachers A Happy Teachers’ Day and would like to thank them for standing by me through this noble journey to provide the children the best for their future.
