SECTION B – READING COMPREHENSION

For questions 11 to 15, Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

The Himalayas are a gigantic line of mountains. We call them 'the roof of the world' because they are the highest mountains on earth. For a long time, no one knew which the highest mountain was in the whole range. In 1852, the Survey of India found that Mount Everest was the highest mountain in the world.

Many people tried to climb the Everest, the tallest peak. But climbing such a high mountain is not easy. The Earth's atmosphere is very thin at the summit. There is little air to breathe. There are very strong winds and it is very cold. In 1953, two men joined an expedition to climb Mount Everest. They were Edmund Hillary from New Zealand and Tenzing Norgay from Nepal. They came from different countries and spoke different languages but they shared the same dream. Both wanted to be the first two people to climb the summit of the Everest.

When they reached 27,900 feet, they put up a tent for the night. They could not sleep. The wind howled and pulled at their tent. It was bitterly cold. But above all, they were excited. The next morning, the two men climbed the last 28 feet to reach the peak of Mount Everest. They had realized their dream. They were the first people to stand on top of the world.

11. The first passage introduces the Himalayas because

- d. the passage is about the Himalayas.

12. There is little air to breathe - is a specific statement supporting the general information that

- a. many people tried to climb the Everest.
- b. the Everest is the tallest peak.
- c. climbing such a high mountain is not easy.
- d. Tenzing tried his best.

13. Hillary and Tenzing wanted to be the first people to reach the Everest because

- a. they shared the same dream.
- b. they were from different countries.
- c. they spoke different languages.
- d. they were friends.

14. On the night before they climbed to the top of Mount Everest, the two men could not sleep because

- a. the wind howled.
- b. it was bitterly cold.
- c. they were excited.
- d. all the above.

15. This passage teaches us about

- a. the grandeur of the Himalayas
- b. the courage to realise an ambition.
- c. the friendship between two people from different countries.
- d. all the above.

For question 21 to 25, read the following passage carefully and use correct options to answer the questions that follow.

Parents are wonderful people. They always have the best interests of their children at heart and they will do anything to prevent their children from getting hurt. However, teenagers often think that parents do not understand them and they are unable to communicate with their parents. So these teenagers are rude to their parents and become utterly selfish at times. If teenagers are a bit more appreciative of their parents and try and put themselves in the shoes of their parents, they will then be able to know how their parents think and feel of their fears and dreams for their children.

Friends too are wonderful to have. Good friends are always there for you, just like parents. But there are friends who may turn out to be bad influences and can lead you astray. Then there are friends who can inspire you and propel you to achieve great heights. So how do you distinguish the good from the bad? In this respect, young people must learn to think for themselves. Reflect constantly on events, people and ideas. Learn to see through people. Hold on to sound moral values and principles. These will definitely help you discriminate the good from the 'bad'.

21. Which is a synonym to the words 'In the shoes of' as used in the passage?

- a. To think like father
- b. To wear the shoes of the father
- c. To study like father
- d. To go to school like father

- a. they are grateful for what they do for their parents.
- b. they are grateful for what their parents do for them.
- c. their parents do what they want.
- d. they are troubled with what the parents do for them.

23. To "have the best interest for their children" necessarily means that

- a. parents should do what teenagers want.
- b. parents should do what is good for themselves.
- c. parents should do what is good for teenagers.
- d. parents should be very strict with teenagers.

24. What will definitely help you discriminate the 'good' from the 'bad'?

- a. reflecting constantly on events, people and ideas
- b. learning to see people through their parents' eyes
- c. holding on to sound moral values and principles
- d. knowing what people say and mean

25. Which word is the synonym to the word 'discriminate' as used in the passage?
